

Fourth floor, Alexander Library, New Brunswick, NJ, Rutgers-New Brunswick

Friday, February 22, 2019

10AM to 4:30PM, includes lunch and reception

Free and open to the public

Co-sponsored by the Rutgers British Studies Center and Cultural Heritage and Preservation Studies

Speakers include:

Lucio Menezes Ferreira Federal University of Pelotas,
Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil

Rachel Ama Asaa Engmann, Department of Africana
Studies, Hampshire College
Jillian E. Galle, Monticello, Thomas Jefferson

Foundation, project director of the Digital Archaeological Archive of Comparative Slavery (DAACS)

Antoinette Jackson, Department of Anthropology,
University of South Florida

This one-day conference will re-examine the material remains of Atlantic slavery, focusing on new interpretations of archeological finds, transnational lines of communication, and the role of the digital humanities in producing knowledge.

The conference will have three main themes:

- -the challenge of interpreting difficult histories
- -creating transnational contexts for interpretation
- the memorialization of the material remains of slavery